FINAL INTERNSHIP REPORT

1. Introduction

The main purpose of selecting this institution for my internship was to develop my English language teaching skills and improve my communication with students to support effective learning and explain lessons in their proper context. Secondly, I selected this institution because I wanted to deliver complete lessons independently rather than only assist other teachers. This also gave me an opportunity to practise classroom management with a real group of more than 30 students.

Another important objective was to apply the lesson-planning theories that I had studied in my coursework to an actual weekly timetable. Finally, I expected to understand how a school day operates beyond the classroom itself, including the activities and responsibilities involved in the overall school environment.

2. Organization Profile

I completed my internship at Sayed Panah Ali Shah Model School, University of Sindh, Jamshoro. It is an educational institution where I was given the opportunity to teach students and gain practical experience in a school environment. During my internship, my main area of work was English language teaching.

The school faculty members had greater teaching experience than I did, and they guided me throughout the internship. They encouraged me to teach English and explain its purpose and importance to students, while providing opportunities for me to contribute to their learning. The school administration and teachers were cooperative, supportive, and helpful. Their guidance and encouragement enabled me to gain valuable teaching experience.

3. Job Description / Tasks Performed

As an English language teaching intern, I prepared and delivered well-organized lessons for students. I focused on the four main language skills: listening, speaking, reading, and writing. I also taught relevant language areas and used micro-teaching techniques to make lessons easier to understand and more engaging. My aim was to help students understand the lesson content and develop their knowledge and language abilities.

My responsibilities included explaining lesson topics, interacting with students, conducting classroom activities, and adapting my teaching style to students' learning levels. I taught students from different classes, including Grades 7, 8, and 9. I also consulted my mentor for guidance when selecting suitable topics and planning effective lessons.

4. Learning Outcomes and Skills

The internship provided me with valuable opportunities to develop my teaching and personal skills. I learned how to become more confident when teaching and sharing my thoughts in front of students. I also gained practical experience in teaching students from Grades 7, 8, and 9. This helped me understand that teachers should choose suitable teaching styles and methods according to students' class levels and learning needs.

I also developed technical skills by learning how to create electronic forms and organize e-portfolios with the help of modern digital tools. During this process, I worked with my mentor and sought guidance in selecting appropriate and effective topics to teach.

Furthermore, I improved my communication, confidence, lesson-delivery, and classroom-management skills. The internship helped me connect the lesson-planning theories and micro-teaching techniques studied in my coursework with their practical application in a real classroom.

5. Challenges Faced

During the first three days of my internship, I encountered some challenges related to applying teaching theories and selecting appropriate teaching styles. Since teaching in a real classroom was a new experience for me, engaging students and managing the class effectively required time, practice, and confidence.

Gradually, I became more familiar with the classroom environment and found practical ways to overcome these challenges. I learned how to apply theoretical knowledge in real teaching situations, select suitable techniques, and communicate with students more effectively. The support and guidance of my mentor and the school faculty members also helped me improve my teaching performance.

6. Conclusion

In conclusion, my internship at Sayed Panah Ali Shah Model School, University of Sindh, Jamshoro, was a valuable learning experience. It provided me with an opportunity to apply the knowledge gained through my coursework and develop practical English language teaching skills. I improved my confidence, communication, lesson planning, classroom management, and use of digital tools. Although I faced some challenges at the beginning, continuous practice and the guidance of my mentor and school faculty helped me address them. Overall, this internship strengthened my understanding of the teaching profession and prepared me for future teaching responsibilities.
